

Tie Breaking Procedure

Two way ties –

All two-way ties will be decided by head-to-head result. If a team won the majority of head-to-head sets in pool play, that team will be the higher finisher. If the head-to-head result was a split, then the winner will be determined by cumulative pool point differential. If the cumulative pool point differential is equal, then the winner will be determined by head-to-head point differential. If a tie still exists, a coin flip will determine finishing places.

All other ties –

All three-way ties will be decided by cumulative pool point differential.

If a tie still exists, a coin flip will determine the places
